This Mobility for Minor Degrees Programme is meant to provide students with the opportunity to complete a minor degree which supports their studies while they are on exchange for one semester. This is a partnership between the Centre for East Asian Studies (CEAS) at the University of Turku and the School of Integrated Knowledge (SIK) at Sogang University in Korea. The two universities established a bilateral exchange agreement in 2015, and in 2016 the first students went on exchange using this agreement. With this bilateral agreement still being relatively new, students at both the University of Turku and Sogang University are not aware of the academic resources available at their partner universities. Instead, when students go on exchange to one of these universities they focus on taking language courses (specifically Korean language at Sogang University) or courses designed for exchange students (for example those designed for students to learn general information about Finland).

Sogang University

This mobility programme seeks to do three things: 1) make students aware of the academic resources available at the University of Turku/Sogang University which can support their studies, 2) encourage and allow students to complete a minor degree while they study abroad, and 3) establish the foundations for developing further cooperation between the University of Turku and Sogang University in the form of a joint degree programme or a programme for a recognized second major completed abroad. At the University of Turku the minor degree that will be available to students is the East Asian Studies Minor, and at Sogang University the minors that will be available to students are the Korean Studies Minor and a Development Studies Minor with a focus on Korea.
